the modern Gurukul

The age-old Gurukul system emphasized the harmonious integration of learning and skill development, fostering holistic growth in students. In today's modern education landscape, there is an urgent need to adopt similar practices, enhanced with the benefits of cutting-edge technology, to cultivate well-rounded personalities and essential life skills. Tula's embodies this vision by reimagining the Gurukul ethos while seamlessly integrating contemporary education methods and state-of-the-art infrastructure.

The school also emphasizes character building through personality development programs and career counseling, positioning itself as a leader in holistic education.

The modern Gurukul concept at Tula's blends traditional values with contemporary methodologies, where students seek knowledge from their mentors using advanced digital platforms. This unique approach nurtures the mind, body, and soul while instilling moral values, traditions, spirituality, and ethics. These principles equip students with critical life skills, fostering discipline, empathy, and a strong moral compass.

Tula's redefines the timeless beauty and simplicity of the Gurukul system by integrating it into a modern, well-equipped environment. STUDENT COUNSELLING

"A psychologist becomes the bridge between a boarding student's heart and their sense of belonging, creating a home away from home through understanding, support, and care." The school psychologist engages with students referred for support by conducting comprehensive evaluations based on behavioral observations, presenting concerns, academic performance, and familial dynamics. The primary goal is to differentiate between transient behavioral responses to external stressors and more persistent psychological challenges. Following this preliminary assessment, students may be referred for detailed psychometric evaluations or psychiatric consultations with qualified professionals or government-recognized institutions, ensuring compliance with CBSE guidelines for further certification processes. In addition to individual assessments, the psychologist adopts a holistic approach to understanding the developmental trajectories of all students, acknowledging the critical significance of the formative years. During this period, children encounter a spectrum of experiences, both positive and adverse, which influence their emotional well-being. Recognizing the need for a trusted confidant, the psychologist fosters a therapeutic rapport with students, providing a safe and confidential environment for them to process their emotions and experiences. By addressing interpersonal, familial, and academic influences on the students' psychological health, the psychologist aims to mitigate crisis and promote resilience. This approach is designed to support students in becoming emotionally well-regulated, physically healthy, and socially responsible individuals capable of navigating life's challenges effectively. The psychologist routinely conducts observational visits to the hostel environment to ensure the psychosocial well-being of the students and to assess the overall atmosphere for its conduciveness to positive mental health. These visits aim to identify potential stressors or maladaptive dynamics that could affect the students' emotional and psychological state, ensuring that the hostel environment mirrors a supportive and nurturing home-like setting. Additionally, structured therapeutic interventions, including home-like counseling sessions, are scheduled at regular intervals, typically every seven days. These sessions provide a safe and consistent platform for students to express their emotions, discuss challenges, and build coping mechanisms. Such regular interactions are critical in fostering a sense of belonging, emotional security, and psychological stability among students living away from their families.

The Pastoral Life Et House System at Tula's International School

At Tula's International School, the pastoral care system is seamlessly integrated with the House System, which forms the foundation of student life. This system fosters a sense of community, responsibility, and personal growth while ensuring the holistic development of every student. Upon enrollment, students are assigned to Houses equipped with modern facilities that provide a safe, comfortable, and productive living environment. Each House is supervised by a dedicated team led by the Housemaster, supported by assistant housemasters, resident mentors, and wardens, who work together to create a nurturing and structured atmosphere.

The Housemaster plays a pivotal role as both a mentor and a bridge between parents and the school, focusing on students' academic, emotional, and social growth. Mentorship is a core aspect of the House System, with senior students guiding juniors and new students being paired with mentors to ease their transition into school life. Formal and informal interactions, such as mentor-mentee sessions and group outings, strengthen bonds and foster a supportive community. Leadership opportunities are abundant, with roles like House Captains and Vice-Captains encouraging accountability and teamwork, while regular inter-house competitions promote camaraderie and excellence.

A welcoming induction process helps new students adapt quickly through social evenings and structured programs, ensuring they feel part of the community from day one. Each House is governed by a council that oversees its functioning and recognizes outstanding contributions through awards like House Colours. The House System not only emphasizes academic and extracurricular achievement but also nurtures personal growth and leadership skills, preparing students for future challenges.

By combining mentorship, leadership opportunities, and a strong sense of belonging, the House System at Tula's International School ensures that students thrive in all aspects of life. This holistic approach transforms their school experience into a journey of growth, learning, and lasting friendships, making the institution a truly exceptional place to live and learn.
